Annual Picnic Will Blaze Forth Sunday

The biggest event of the season will be staged the coming Sunday when the Daly City Merchants Association give the annual picnic at Oak Cove Park.

Everything has been arranged for the enjoyment of those who attend, and it is anticipated that the largest crowd ever to gather at one of these functions will be present to play and frolic and have a good time generally.

The day will begin with music in front of the City Hall by our own Daly City Band boys, and then the caravan will move down the peninsula to the picnic grounds.

The fun starts next Sunday at Oak Cove Park. The Daly City Merchants Association is staging another gala annual picnic. Games, athletic competition, prizes, music and dancing, and free coffee and hot dogs will round out a happy outing program for picnickers.

Johnny Dell, who has played at popular San Francisco dancing marts and for radio programs, will furnish music for afternoon dancing on the Oak Cove spacious open-air floor. Johnny informs your correspondent that his snappy little combination will include an accordion, which is especially popular for dance music this season. Even if you don't dance you will enjoy his music.

Local and guest athletes will display their powers in several types of competition. Winners, of course, are to receive prizes. Games of all types and for persons of all ages will be sponsored and conducted by directors.

The Merchants Association extends to everyone a hearty welcome to join in the annual good time. No need to bring a lunch, for free eats is just another convenient feature of the afternoon.

REGULAR MEETING OF DALY CITY COUNCIL HELD MONDAY EVENING

Pass Resolution To Relinquish Part Of Junipero Serra Boulevard To Joint Highway District Number Ten For Maintenance

Our Daly City Fathers met in regular session, Monday evening of this week.

Mayor Selmi, Councilmen Cavagnaro and Sunderman, City Attorney Convery, City Clerk Ross, and Assistant City Engineer Klassen were noted present.

A resolution to relinquish and release jurisdiction over that section of Junipelo Sierra boulevard which lies within the city limits of Daly City was passed by the Daly City Council at a regular meeting Monday evening, August 24.

This resolution was passed after a communication from District Engineer Casey suggested the specified section of highway be maintained by Joint Highway District Number 10 until such time as it could be made a section of the state highway system.

An ordinance prohibiting drunkenness in public places was passed by the council. Fines not to exceed $300 and imprisonment not to exceed three months will be meted out to violators.

Fire Chief Chesney sent a communication to the council stating that he was unable to attend a special meeting of the council with certain members of the fire department on August 17. Chesney also stated that the matter of Goldberg's suspension from the fire department had been taken out of his hands.

A. J. Gaggero and G. R. Augustien submitted resignations as fire commissioners, which were accepted.

Bids submitted by Boni Hardware company for certain fire hose and accessories were submitted to the fire committee.

A request by A. R. Haskins to operate an auto camp at 6991-6999 Mission street was considered by the council. Action was tabled until such time as Haskins should submit complete details of proposed work in order that the building progress in accordance with city and state laws.

Mayor S. S. Gillette of Santa Monica sent a communication inviting city officers to attend the thirty-eighth annual convention of the League of California Municipalities, to be held in Santa Monica, September 9, 10, 11, and 12. Motion was made to lay over the matter for one week. It is probable that a member of the city council and an exhibition of Daly City's water supply system will be sent to the convention.

By request, Foster and Kleiser Advertising company has agreed to remove two signs nowstanding on the corner of Mission and Como streets. The advertising company sought permission to reconstruct the signs at Mission and Moltke streets. The matter was referred to the city planning committee.

Poundmaster's report was submitted. Current claims were satisfied by a motion.

On Mission Street Another Life Lost

One of last Sunday's traffic victims was an unidentified woman, killed as she was crossing Mission street, shortly after midnight.

The woman, apparently about 27 years old, was struck at 12:10 a. m., Sunday, by a car driven by Richard Bauer, 28, of 8 Sears street, San Francisco, as she was crossing the intersection at Mission and Alp streets in Daly City.

Arrested by Daly City police, Bauer was booked on a technical charge of negligent homicide and was released after Justice of the Peace Wade H. Clay set bail at $100 cash.

According to witnesses, the woman walked directly into the path of Bauer's northbound car. Earlier in the evening she had been seen in several Daly City and Colma taverns and apparently had been drinking, police said.

Bauer told local police he did not see the woman until it was too late to avoid striking her. He stopped his car immediately and an ambulance from Villa Sanatorium was summoned.

There she died, a few minutes after she was brought in, of internal hemorrhages.

Today, more than 36 hours after the fatal accident occurred, her identity remained a mystery. Every possible source of information, including fingerprints, clothing and a widespread broadcast of her description was being checked by Deputy Coroner Luella Pepper, but at a late hour today she remained unidentified.

At the time of the accident occurred she was carrying a small black suitcase containing some clothing, several postcard photographs of the bay bridge and some personal stationery bearing the initial "A."

She was described as about 5 feet 4 inches tall, weight 115 pounds, with dark brown hair, and brown eyes. The woman had thin, attractice features, police said. Hope of learning her identity through dental work was slight, they reported, since her teeth were in poor condition and apparently had been neglected for some time.

She wore a green and white sport dress, striped blouse, and a navy blue jacket with fur trimmed sleeves.

Following information furnished by Miss Rose Macchi of Colma, who said she had seen the woman earlier in the evening in a Colma tavern. Police checked all local taverns. They learned she had appeared in nearly every tavern in Daly City and Colma during the course of the evening and had sought to purchase drinks in all of them. Each time she was refused, police said, on the grounds she had "had too many already."

Witnesses to the accident were a Mrs. Crawford, of 41 Como street, and O. E. Clanton, of 6454 Mission street, Daly City. They declared the young woman was walking along the side of Mission street and apparently was about to cross to the other side. As Bauer's machine approached she walked directly into its path, they said.

Police explained the charges against Bauer were a technicality required by law. He is a laborer, they said, and had been working in Colma.

TANFORAN'S FAME IS BASED ON BREEDING

By J. W. MARCHBANK

In less than six weeks the racing will begin for the fall at my Tanforan track. The meeting will be the fourteenth in the modern series at the historic course in California. As interest is at a high pitch even this early, a wonderful session can be predicted. Horses of class are arriving from the East and to meet the unusually extensive demand for stabling space new stalls are being constructed.

Indicative of the high standing of Tanforan are the requests not only along the line of accommodations for horses now in training, but queries as to thoroughbreds of the past and kindred subjects. Tanforan is looked upon as the headquarters in the West for all that pertains to the blood horse, whether racing or breeding.

H. Archie Richardson, American correspondent of the Melbourne Sporting Globe, wrote in, for example, asking for information about the descendants of the Australasian horse Darebin. He was given to understand by sports writers of San Francisco that the Tanforan personnel took especial pride in studying blood lines and, accordingly, addressed his communication to an official at my track.

Darebin is of more than ordinary interest to the fans of racing, as he was one of several score of stallions imported by James B. Haggin for his Rancho del Paso. First of all it may be noted Darebin, foaled as long ago as the seventies, was a stakes winner in his native land, scoring in the Victoria Racing Club Derby, the Sydney Cup, the Melbourne Stakes and other features. That is as it should be. I have found it is best to have stallions that were noted on the course; mares may either have raced or not, that is immaterial.

The old time thoroughbred came down in direct male descent from Melbourne. In this country Melbourne is well known as being on the top line of Man o' War. What interests me most is Darebin was sire of Emma C., dam of the great Commando. As will be recalled, Commando only lived a comparatively short time, but got such noted sons as Colin, Peter Pan, Celt, Ultimus, Superman and Transvaal. His sons, grandsons and great-grandsons are going strong as sires of winners and as broodmare sires. Gallant Fox is from a Celt matron, as is my premier stallion, King Heather.

IF DELIVERY OF YOUR PAPER IS LATE--REASON, WE'RE MOVING

The Daly City Record is late in going to press with this issue, causing tardiness in its delivery and possible disappointment to its subscribers. So if your paper is late in arriving at your home just be patient, for after this week we will be well established in our new quarters and thereafter your paper will be delivered at the usual time.

Our newspaper plant has been in the throes of moving from its old home on Mission street at Theta avenue to its new and future location at 3325 San Jose avenue, in the rear of the Daly City Theater. Besides new machinery is being installed, with delays here and there, holding up our wheels of progress, much to our dismay.

We know this loss of time and convenience leaves behind it a commodious and modernized plant, equipped to serve our patrons more efficiently, and in your thought, we trust, there lurks a deeper appreciation of your home newspaper.

EXCESSIVE SPEED RESPONSIBLE FOR ANOTHER FATALITY ON NEW ROAD

Victim Hurled Through Window Of Automobile As Machine Fails To Negotiate Curve And Car Leaves Highway And Overturns

PETALUMA GIRL KILLED IN ACCIDENT

When the automobile in which she was a passenger failed to round a curve while traveling at a high rate of speed on Junipero Serra boulevard and left the highway and overturned, a young woman, resident of Petaluma, received injuries, Friday night of last week, from which she died a few hours later in the Mills Memorial Hospital.

The accident occurred at about 11 o'clock Friday night on the Junipero Serra boulevard in Colma, about a quarter of a mile west of El Camino Real. The car was speeding East on the boulevard and failed to negotiate a curve. The wheels struck the soft shoulder of dirt at the edge of the highway and the car went over.

The victim, Miss Jean Reed of 631 Liberty street, Petaluma, was apparently thrown through the window of the car and hurled against a rock by the roadside. Her companion was uninjured and crawled out of the wreckage of the machine.

Miss Reed was taken to the Mills Memorial Hospital by a passing motorist. She was found to have sustained a fractured skull and numerous other injuries, from which she

PROGRAM OF AMERICANISM TO BE CHIEF AIM OF LEGION AUXILIARY

On her return from the state convention at Hollywood, last week, Mrs. Ruth Mathebat, newly elected department president of the American Legion Auxiliary, issued a statement regarding the principal objective of her program of activities for the coming year, as follows:

"The auxiliary of the American Legion has grown in importance since its inception seventeen years ago. Today, the organization stands as one of the most important in veteran circles.

"I hope during my administration to continue this successful trend and to establish the auxiliary in the eyes of the public. Toward this end, we will strive to take an active part in community life and to forward the principles of Americanism."

What she would like to see more than anything else, Mrs. Mathebat said, is a membership drive which would send the auxiliary over the 25,000 mark.

At this time there are approximately 22,900 members and the anticipated quota is not at all impossible.

Serving with Mrs. Mathebat at the head of the auxiliary are Mrs. Florence Chess of San Mateo, vice president, and Mrs. Ethel Flynn as department secretary-treasurer.

JEFFERSON UNION HIGH SCHOOL IS NOW ACCREDITED

Graduates Of Local Institution Now Entitled To Enter University

Jefferson Union High School opened on last Monday with an enrollment of 562, which by Wednesday morning had grown to 580. This is the largest opening enrollment in the history of the school.

The enrollment in Auto-mechanics, Biology, Chemistry, English, and History was particularly heavy. Four extra sections had to be organized to accomodate the Biology students, while in Chemistry one extra class was required. In English and History the classes are filled to capacity.

Already textbooks have been distributed to the entire school, and regular class work has begun.

Principal James Ferguson states that the fine spirit shown by the entire student body in getting down to work so promptly speaks well for a successful school year.

The boys have been showing unusual spirit in football, under Coach Biggs and Coach Mathews. Enough boys to form five and a half teams have already turned out for practice. The field is in first class shape, and the season promises to be successful if enthusiasm counts for anything.

Dr. Paschall, State Examiner of Schools for the University of California, has notified Mr. Ferguson that the Jefferson Union High School is on the 1936-'37 list of accredited high schools. This means that graduates of our local high school can enter the University on the same basis as the graduates of any other accredited school in California.

Freight trains nowadays act like express specials. New freight schedules are so fast, I sometimes wonder if everything has to be delivered day before yesterday.

Many of our passenger trains are running faster schedules, too. Well, one thing is sure. We make faster runs, but the first railroad commandment is still "Safety First." That's one rule they won't change.

Western railroads and allied industries provided jobs for 750,000 workers last year Some of them live in our town. Good neighbors.

Passenger fares are now the lowest in history with substantial reductions on round trips. And no more surcharge for riding in sleeping cars.

This Free pick-up-and-delivery of less than carload freight—I heard some traveling salesmen talking about it on the train yesterday. They said it saves shippers a lot of money and centers all responsibility on the railroad. The railroad picks up the freight at shipper's door and delivers it at receiver's door. Of course, the local delivery men get the haul from door-to-car and car-to-door at both ends. But the railroad handles the whole transaction.

When railroads are busy, I notice towns along the railroad are prosperous. The merchants put more ads in the newspapers.

succumbed on Saturday morning, without regaining consciousness.

The young woman's companion, driver of the machine, was Cecil Warren Paul, a young man engaged in the furniture business in Los Banos.

The mother of the girl, Mrs. Myrtle Reed of Petaluma, stated the couple had left for the Peninsula journey, Friday evening, "just for a ride."

In the girl's pocket was found a cryptic telegram arranging a "date" and signed "Ray." Dated August 13, the telegram read: "Clara, 7 p. m., Friday. Try to make it."

Paul was arrested by Highway Patrolmen Schramm and Wallace and lodged in the Redwood City jail, where he was held until court convened Saturday morning.

At his arraignment before Justice of the Peace Wade H. Clay, Saturday morning, on a charge of negligent homicide, Paul was held for trial and returned to the county jail at Redwood City. His bail was fixed at $250 cash or $500 bond.

Miss Reed's body was removed to the mortuary of County Coroner William F. Crosby, Saturday morning, and later in the day was taken to the family home in Petaluma.

The coroner said the date for an inquest probably would be set this week.

OTTO KRUGER STARS IN NEW ALCAZAR PLAY

A gala theatrical event takes place at the Alacazar Theater, on Monday night of next week, when Henry Duffy brings to San Francisco that famous stage and scareen star, Otto Kruger, who is to be seen in the title role of that romantic play "Parnell," in which he will be surrounded by a distinguished cast of players, including members of the original New York cast.

Edith Barrett, new to San Francisco, but one of the most popular of the younger New York stars, will play opposite Otto Kruger in the role of Katherine O'shea, while Effie Shannon, another star of Broadway fame, will be seen in the role of Aunt Ben; John Emery, seen here with Katherine Cornell, in "St Joan," will have the same role in "Parnell," that of Captain William O'Shea, which he created on Broadway.

Other excellent players in the large cast include Montague Love, Kay Linaker, Frank Shannon, Robert Cummings, Harry MacCollum, Charles Girard, Clare Vedera, Maureen Roden-Ryan, Frederick Sewall and several others of importance.

Tickets are now on sale at the Alacazar box office for the first week of the limited stay of Otto Kruger in San Francisco.

Sunday matinee and evening performances will conclude the long and successful stay of "Three Men on a Horse" at the Alacazar.

Otto Kruger, in person comes to the Alcazar Theatre in San Francisco August 31st.

One of the most brilliant theatrical events of the past few seasons will take place at the Alcazar Theatre when Henry Duffy brings that noted stage and screen star, Otto Kruger in the romantic play, "Parnell" to San Francisco for a brief stay starting Monday evening, August 31st.

The story of "Parnell," the man who recklessly threw away a career for the love a beautiful woman, gives Otto Kruger his most powerful role, overshadowing even that of the fighting lawyer in "Counsellor-At-Law," or the debonnair man-about-town of "Accent on Youth." In depth, heart interest and sympathetic appeal "Parnell" is unquestionably Kruger's most dynamic role: a man torn between his love of country and affection for a noble-spirited woman. The play is in eight scenes and requires a supporting cast of 20.

Edith Barrett one of Broadway's outstanding young stars who scored a triumph during the past season as the beautiful Katie O'Shea of "Parnell" is shown in the scene above with Kruger. Besides Miss Barrett others of the original cast include Effie Shannon, John Emery, Barry Macollum and Walter Holbrook. Also conspicuous in the company are Montague Love, Frank Shannon, Kay Linaker, Robert Cummings, Ian Wolfe, Joseph Gerard, Clare Vedera, Maureen-Ryan and others.

"Three Men on a Horse" will conclude its long and successful stay at the Alcazar Theatre with the matinee and evening performances Sunday, August 30th.

National Parks Ease Ban On Dogs

Motorists who will not travel without their dogs and consequently miss the beauty of many of our national parks which ban them will be pleased to know that Yosemite National Park and Grand Canyon National Park will now admit pets under certain conditions.

Government regulations for Yosemite read: "Dogs and cats are not allowed in the park, except that they may be transported inside a car through the park provided they do not stay overnight on park lands." This is interpeted by Superintendent Thomson as follows: "In other words, dogs are permitted over all roads in the park open to the public; but they must be kept inside the car at all times and are not allowed in the park overnight. This enables many one-day visitors to see the principal points of interest without the inconvenience of leaving their pets in a kennel near the park entrance."

In the case of Grand Canyon National Park, Assistant Superintendent J. V. Lloyd states: "It has been the policy of this park to permit the bringing in of dogs provided they are kept on leash at all times or within the car or cabin. Under no circumstances are they permitted to run loose."

This means that the motorist who will comply with these requirements may visit the park with his pet and spend several days there if he so desires.

CLAIM UNSOUND LEGISLATION

The board of directors of the California State Chamber of Commorce at its meeting in Los Angeles Friday, August 7, went on record recommending that the Chain Store Tax Bill be opposed at the November election, and that members and councilmen of the State Chamber of Commerce be urged to work for the defeat of the measure. The policy of the board is as follows:

"At the time the Chain Store Tax Bill (A. B. 2365) was pending in 1935, the board of directors of the State Chamber of Commerce adopted the policy that legislation of this character is fundamentally unsound and cannot be classified as a revenue measure. Further, that to attempt to apply disciplinary remedies by such means is undesirable. This legislation is not designed to correct any specific abuses, but levies a tax on the number of places at which merchandise is sold, obviously an unfair basis of taxation.

"This bill was held up by referendum and will appear upon the November general election ballot for vote of the people as Proposition No. 22.

For the reasons stated above, which clearly indicate that this proposal is contrary to the welfare of California, the State Chamber recommends that this proposition be opposed at the November election.

SPEAKING OF SPARES

In view of the increasing number of rear-end collisions at night, there is a growing conviction that the carrying of a spare tail libht bulb is becoming the greater part of wisdom on the part of motorists.

The only limitations on the idea is that so few car owners take the trouble to see whether or not the light is working. A spare bulb, plus periodical inspection, would be a good idea.

DON'T BE CARELESS WITH YOUR DOORS

It's dangerous to open the doors of speeding automobiles.

See that all doors are closed tight before starting. Also see that no coat tails or dresses are caught in the doors. Stop the car, or at least slow down, before you open doors. If you learn to do things the safe way, accidents will give you little or no trouble.

LABOR BATTLES HARD FOR NATION'S CHIEF

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

In a recent book written by a Liberal while in prison we find this inspiring sentence:

"You ought to combat the forces of intrigue, revenge and resentment."

The same man saw prisoners sawing wood in a yard to a monotonous rhythm, and exclaimed:

"Then suddenly—they are not human beings any longer but marionettes."

Another Liberal, President Roosevelt, can truly he said to be fighting with all his might, the forces of intrigue, revenge and resentment. And he has determined, above all things, to readjust economic conditions in such a way none of our citizens, however humble, shall be transformed into gadgets.

Business, as represented in the so-called American Liberty League and American Manufacturers Association, is trying to make the President a sacrifice to the Moloch of the big money, but fortunately are making little headway. Rather, the chief executive is attached more than ever to that well known triad—tenderness, humanity, and opportunity and is not losing any strength in his forthright appeal to the American people.

It is becoming more evident as time goes on that the labor hosts, along with the women, young people, farmers and men in the smaller lines of business, are going to put President Roosevelt in the White House for four years more without difficulty. What is commonly referred to as Wall street will not have any say about the verdict in the coming election, that's a certainty.

In a letter to the first national convention of Labor's Non-Partisan League, the President said he was determined to "enlarge the scope of human welfare in our nation" and to achieve "progress through law." That signifies High Finance is out of it for all time.

As one commentator notes, American labor has massed itself forcefully and articulately behind Mr. Roosevelt. John L. Lewis, a great labor leader, declares he wishes to save our country the agony and the convulsions that come when extremists take hold. A sound thought, that.

Landon seems to be losing ground steadily and Lemke is even more at sea. Neither the candidate of the Republican party nor of the Union (union of crackpot elements, some one has well said) party appears to have the least glimmering of what it is all about. On the other hand, President Roosevelt is not only a clear thinker—he knows how to express himself on all important issues.

The latest accession to the Union party is none other than "Big Bill" Thompson, former mayor of Chicago, who will run for Governor of Illinois on the Lemke ticket. Thompson was for a long time a regular machine Republican and it will be recalled won wide notoriety by his one-man crusade against the supposed menace of the late King George. It may be Thompson's affiliation with the anti-Roosevelt group will draw away votes from the Landon to the Lemke ticket.

When the minister in New York recently suggested a moratorium on preaching, Eastern wags opined it should be extended to political oratory and to all other kinds indulged in by people who prefer talking to thinking, especially from broadcasting studios.

HIGH CLASS USED CARS

There is this to console yourself with in case you cannot finance a new car at this particular season: Other persons are able to do so, with the result that they are turning in an even higher class of used cars.

The second hand market, rather depleted during the years of the depression, has grown steadily better during the past six months. It testifys to economy betterment in a fashion that is particularly satisfying to the motor trade.

BE CAREFUL IN GIVING SIGNALS WHEN DRIVING

Pointed Out That Use Of Hand Signs Required By State Law

Motorists who fail to signal when slowing down, stopping or preparing to make a turn are not only vialating road courtesy and ignoring a safe driving rule, but they are breaking the law. This has been pointed out in a statement today by the Public Safety Department of a state automobile organization, declaring that failure to signal is a frequent cause of accidents. The statement continued:

"The California Vehicle Act requires motorists, before starting, turning, or stopping, to first make sure whether they can do so with safety and then to give a plainly visible signal. The law requires that a proper signal shall be given continuously during the last fifty feet before stopping or turning. There is a good reason why signals should be given well in advance. When a signal is not given until just before stopping or turning other traffic may not be able to slow down or stop in time to avoid a collision.

"Signals are neiessary not only to let the car behind know what the driver intends to do, but they are often necessary for the information and protection of an approaching motorist who may intend to make a turn himself or who may be entering from an intersecting road. Signals are also important for the protection of the driver himself when he plans to slow down, stop or alter his direction.

"Often a driver waiting at an intersection for a safe chance to enter the other road is deprived of an opportunity because a driver approaching from the right or left and intending also to make a turn has failed to make the required signal.

"Signals should be given clearly and unmistakably, with the hand and arm extended in such a way as to be plainly visible to other drivers. Too many drivers merely drop a hand an inch or two outside the car in a way which requires other drivers to guess at what is meant."

This latter gesture does not comply with the statute.

Lesson Sermon Of Christian Science

"Christ Jesus" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, August 30, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved" (John 3: 17). Other Bible citations will include: "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God" (I John 5: 13).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus demonstrated Christ; he proved that Christ is the divine idea of God—the Holy Ghost, or Comforter, revealing the divine Principle, Love, and leading into all truth" (p. 332).

USE NEW GASKETS

It is unwise to restore old gaskets if new ones are available.

There is considerable leakage of oil from many motors, as evidenced by black streaks on highways. This loss could be avoided to a large extent if fewer motorists insisted upon having old gaskets used again after the motor has been disassembled.

GAS TAX MEASURE JOKERS ARE ASSAILED IN STATE PRESS COMMENT

Citing as evidence an array of editorial comment in newspapers throughout the state, the California State Automobile Association in a statement this week declared that "a thorough exposure of the false character of the so-called 'Save The Gas Tax' initiative amendment is taking place."

The association is leading the fight against the measure on the ground that the proposed amendment contains jokers, ambiguities and uncertainties. The major joker is declared to be one which would prevent the Legislature from placing an equitable fuel tax on Diesel truck operators. Public reaction against the measure, it is stated, is shown by excerpts from editorial comment, quoted as follows:

No matter of state policy lies closer to the hearts of most Californians that the insistence there shall be no diversion of gasoline tax funds to other state purposes and no raids against the gas tax. We might have expected that soime group would seize upon this sentiment to get something for themselves.—San Bernardino Telegram.

This "save the gas tax" appeal is merely the "front" for a measure which on close examination turns out to be something quite different.—Oakland Post - Enquirer.

In any case the question of taxation of Diesel fuel is for the Legislature to decide in its 1937 session. It has no place in any amendment to prevent diversion of gasoline tax ed. There seems to be no occasion now to raise the fear that motorists' rights are in danger.—San Francisco Examiner.

When two different questions are presented in one measure it is a money.—San Francisco Call - Bulletin.

A dubious proposal. As the law stands the highway fund is protectphysical impossibility for the people to separate them. There is no way in which they can separate an unwanted joker from an otherwise popular measure.—Eureka Times.

No organization has fought more consistently to save the gas tax for the highways than the California State Automobile Association. Therefore, this association is entitled to be heeded when it warns that a proposed initiative amendment to "save the gas tax" is a blind for a number of jokers.—San Francisco Chronicle.

It is always safe to vote "NO" on a proposition its authors are afraid to have the Legislature handle.—Orland Unit.

By dragging this initiative measure into the limelight of public discussion the Automobile Association will doubtless defeat what it refers to as "a monumental piece of insincerity."—Santa Rosa Press - Democrat.

California's automobile association deserves a vote of thanks for warning us in time. And the interests behind this measure deserve a good spanking for trying to put it over on us.—Porterville Recorder.

BACK YOUR CAR WITH EXTREME CAUTION

Two persons were killed recently in a midwestern city when they were knocked down and run over by backing automobiles. Only two of the many serious accidents caused yearly by this type of careless driving.

It takes more skill to handle your car when in reverse than when in the forward gears. Be sure to look on both sides to the rear and sound your horn before you back from the garage or out of a driveway, and then back slowly. A child may dash behind you at any minute.

In the open street, many motorists have a habit of backing around corners to avoid turning—or of backing in the street when it would take only a very little more time—and be much safer—to go around the block.

The good driver forgets he has a rear view mirror when backing. He actually turns around in his seat and looks where he is going. Be a good driver and avoid all unsafe practices.

SPEEDING NEW CAR

Occasional spurts of speed when breaking in a new or reconditioned motor are not harmful provided a few common sense rules are observed.

It is not advisable to drive faster if the motor is already hot. But if motor temperature is below average, speeding up to 45 miles per hour for ten or twelve miles should help to seal the piston rings. Sustained high speed for longer periods should be avoided until the motor is thoroughly broken in, usually after 1000 miles or more.

He wiped his glasses, and went on.

"I'd written a cable ordering your arrest. There didn't seem much sense in sending it. I was stuck in Bad Nauheim. My son was locked up in the Tombs. You seemed bent on getting him out. It was a chance. I telegraphed Harwood to give you every possible aid. I told him to raise your salary, and I signed a check for my wife to send you. She didn't know that you weren't her boy, and she didn't know I knew anything. Nobody knew. I kept my mouth shut, and the wires busy.

"Two weeks ago, I learned that you'd accomplished nothing and that the date of the trial was set. I went to my doctor, and he said I could make the trip. After I'd booked passage Harwood cabled about the Morano clew. Then I told my wife everything, and came home."

"To deal with me?"

"Yes."

Apparently that was all. Ridder had made his statement, coldly, calmly, as a judge might have spoken in charging a jury. The charge over, he waited again—so long that the pause became unendurable. Barry was standing—like a prisoner in the dock. After a moment, he said: "What are you going to do?"

"Listen to your explanation."

"I haven't any."

"There's a police officer in the next room."

"Yes," Barry answered. "I felt sure there would be."

"Is there any reason I shouldn't turn you over to him?"

"None that you don't know about."

He was as cold and as calm as Ridder. Two cold, calm men, looking at each other. Ridder knew everything. He knew what Barry had done for his son, and had "a police officer in the next room." Knowing everything, he waited until Barry could be of no further use and then sent for "the cops." A hard man and a mean one. That was that.

"I'm not going to beg off, if that's what you want," Barry blurted. "You know what I did—"

"I want to know why you did it."

"I don't know myself."

"No?"

"No."

"I think I do know," Ridder said. His glasses were still in his hand, and he was scrutinizing Barry through naked, narrow eyes. "Half a dozen people have been here to plead for you. One of 'em's still here. To listen to them, anybody'd suppose you broke into my house to do me a good turn. You didn't exactly do that, did you?"

"No," Barry answered. "I didn't."

"The obvious thing seems to be that you broke in to help yourself. The servants arrived and mistook you for my son. That enabled you to stay on. Then my son's wife appeared. You silenced her by undertaking to get the boy off. That's the story, isn't it?"

"Pretty nearly."

"And then you remained to face me because you thought you could bluff your way out. That was the game, wasn't it? Blackmail?"

Barry was getting angry. It was unbearable; this hard, mean old man twisting his motives, incapable of admitting that a single one of them might have been honest. Why should he remain silent? He was in for it, anyway.

"As a matter of fact," he found himself saying, "that isn't my game. The story you told isn't my story. It's merely what happened, with all the truth left out of it."

"Then why don't you tell me the truth?"

"You wouldn't believe me. You couldn't, because you couldn't understand. I broke into your house because I was cold, and wet, and hungry. I stayed, at first, because I was nuts about a girl, and wanted to be near her. Then Peggy came—she's your daughter-in-law, you know—and told me her story. I was sorry for her. Terribly sorry. But, of course, you don't believe that."

"Why not?"

"Because you knew the story, too. You had 'em trailed all about Florida. You knew the fight he'd made, and she'd made for him, and you didn't give a damn. 'I haven't got a friend in the world,' she said. 'Just a sick kid, and a husband I'm strong for shut up in the Tombs.' That's why I stayed on in your house, using your name, to help her. At least, I think it is. You don't. You couldn't. You never felt sorry for anybody. You've got the truth now—the whole truth. Send for your cop, and let's have it over."

The old man sat watching him.

And then, suddenly, he thrust forward the paper he'd been reading when Barry entered.

"How do you explain that?" he asked.

"What is it?"

"The wireless you sent my wife two days after you broke into my house. To make her think that you were her son. When you wrote that, you'd never seen Peggy. You didn't know you could help anybody. You were perpetrating a cruel hoax to stay on in my house, and feather your nest. Is that true, or isn't it?"

"It isn't."

"Then why did you send that message?"

Barry didn't answer.

How could one answer—to that hard, mean old man—"I sent it because I never had a mother, and liked pretending that I had?" How could one say, "I felt sorry for her, too. I wanted her to believe that her boy loved her?" One simply couldn't, and so Barry remained silent.

The old man was waiting.

"Go on," Barry said. "Get your cop."

"If I have you arrested, the cat's out of the bag."

"I don't get you."

"Every one's going to know that the man in my house wasn't my son—that my son was in the Tombs."

Barry's eyes flashed.

"You would think of that. Well, go ahead; ring. My mouth's shut, too. I did this to give those two kids a break. I'm not likely to spoil it now, am I? Go on, ring, and let's have it over."

The old man's hand descended upon the button.

Then the big door opened, and a secretary entered.

He glanced at Barry, and whispered to Ridder.

"All right. We're finished."

The secretary glanced at Barry again and left the room.

With cold, calm eyes, Ridder indicated the door behind him.

"In there," he said, rising and walking away.

Barry looked after him.

"Tough guy," Barry muttered quite audibly, quoting Peggy. His hand was on the knob now. "Tough guy—that bird."

Then he braced himself and opened the door.

It was dark in the next room.

Quite dark, after the dazzling sunlight of Ridder's office.

Barry closed the door behind him and stood trying to accustom himself to the new dimness.

There was only one window here, and that heavily curtained. No way in or out, except that by which Barry had come. A smallish board room, this was, for staff meetings. Barry made out a long table, with chairs about it, and several file cabinets. Beside these, some one was waiting.

The "cop"?

Before Barry could answer his own question, the figure turned and came forward.

Patricia.

Patricia Hambidge, in a blue tailored ensemble.

Barry laughed.

"Pat!" he exclaimed. "I thought you were a policeman."

"No," she replied, grimly. "There's one outside, though. My father warned you about Mr. Ridder but I didn't think anybody could be as—as granite as that old man."

"You're tellin' me?" Barry grinned.

"We've been at him ever since he arrived—his son, Peggy, father and I, Peter Winslow, his own wife. We didn't expect friendship to count—not after the way his paper went after father. But we talked reason. Peter, with his wife sick at home—Peter said you couldn't've worked harder for your brother."

"What was Ridder's answer to that?"

"'He had to. This girl'—meaning Peggy—'This girl wouldn't've kept her mouth shut if she hadn't thought he was her one chance.'

"'Yes,' Peter argued, 'but he was really working.'

"'He was getting a good salary for doing it. And good clothes, and a good home, and servants he wasn't paying for. I'd've worked in his place.'"

"So my mother pleaded, too," Barry reminded himself, swiftly, with curious satisfaction. Then he grinned again at having thought of that old man's wife as his mother.

"I'd like to meet Mrs. Ridder," he said aloud. "I'd like to thank her. And Winslow, of course, and all of you."

"It didn't do much good," Pat responded. "But Peter's going to take your case, and fight to a finish. He says he'll stay home from Europe, if necessary."

"I don't want to fight," Barry answered. "I'm not exactly eager to go to jail, but it looks as though I was booked for it. And I don't want to make any rumpus. That would only hurt Jack and Peggy. I want to wipe all this off the slate, and start fresh."

Pat nodded.

"I know. You kept saying, 'Let's have it over.'"

"You heard?"

"Of course. I listened shamelessly."

"Did it matter so much to you?" Barry asked.

And then was sorry he'd said it.

"We've all been long on eavesdropping," he added, quickly. "Old Ridder, your father—"

"We've all had good reasons."

She was standing beside the long table.

"You asked if it mattered to me," she said. "Don't you know?"

"Why should it matter?"

"Don't you know that?"

"We've been good pals—" he began.

She was staring at him fixedly.

"Don't talk nonsense," she commanded.

Barry sat next to her.

"Pat," he said. "You're a lady—"

She laid her hand on his arm.

"I've only one question to ask," she declared, "and I count on your answering that honestly."

"You can."

"You said—to Ridder—'I stayed, at first, because I was nuts about a girl.'"

"Yes."

"Was that true?"

"Yes."

"Who was she?"

"I told you a month ago."

"Under considerable stress. And you never repeated it. Are you still nuts about her?"

She used the absurd colloquialism as gravely as though it were Shakespearian English.

An invisible hand clutched at Barry's throat.

There was a lump there—something that had to be swallowed immediately. He felt an hysterical desire to laugh, or to cry. Then, "We won't talk about that now," he said, calmly.

"Why not?"

He couldn't answer.

"Was that pretense, too?"

Suddenly, he couldn't bear it.

"You know damned well it wasn't," he burst forth, inexcusably. "You know exactly how I feel. You've always known. Everybody's always known everything about me, it seems.

Then, Pat Said, "I Love You."

I'm as much a failure at faking as I am at everything else. What's the sense of discussing it now?"

"This may be our last chance to discuss it."

They were both standing. Looking straight at each other.

Then, Pat said, "I love you."

"For God's sake—listen—I'm the son of a ne'er-do-well."

"I love you."

"I'm a bum and a vagabond."

"I love you."

"Before night, I'll be a jail-bird."

"I love you."

"Pat—"

"I'll wait for you," Pat said. "And then we'll both start fresh."

She was smiling now.

"Will you marry me, Mr. Gilbert?"

For answer, he caught her up in his arms.

He was still holding her when the old man came through the door.

Program Of Development Campaign Is Nearing Completion

(Sidney Norman in Vancouver Sun)

The comprehensive development campaign mapped out by the management of Bralorne Mines, Bridge River, at the time re-amalgamation of the Bralorne and Bradian was effected ten months ago, will be completed soon, according to R. Bosustow, mine superintendent.

Within a week, crosscuts from the 14th level of the King shaft, in the northwest, or Bralorne, section of the property, will intersect both the King and "C" veins.

The shaft has been put down from No. 8, or main tunnel entry of the mine, and has now reached a depth of 900 feet below that level, midway between the two veins, with distance of around 250 feet to each.

On No. 10 level from the Coronation, or Bradian section, shaft, the east drift on the Ida May vein is in a full width of ore, said to be of exceptional richness.

Empire shaft, also in the Bradian section is close to the 800-foot level, where it will meet extension of the drift from the main tunnel entry of the Bralorne section.

At this time the drift is approximately 200 feet from a point under the shaft and connection should be made within ten days, thus completing the major connecting-up program.

After that has been done, the Empire shaft will be carried to the No. 10 level of Coronation shaft, a distance of approximately 250 feet and connection eventually made with No. 10 drift from the Bralorne main shaft, thus bringing all production to a central point at mill level.

The mine now employs around 400 men, the force having been considerably augmented recently to take care of needed surface work, which includes erection of more houses for married men.

Emphasizing the value of mining operations in the building up otherwise waste areas, it is interesting to know that population of Bralorne town is now about 1000 including 130 families, with at least 140 children.

When operations were started by the present company, the only automobile in town was owned by the manager. Today over 250 cars are registered and in constant use.

At Pioneer, two miles up the main highway, another prosperous community of 750 people has been built up around the mine.

It is estimated that counting the residents of Goldbridge and Minto, numerous developing mines, campers and farmers, the total population of Bridge River Valley is now somewhere between 2500 and 3000 people.

EXPERIENCED HOUSEWIFE CLUB

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Become a charter member of the Experienced Housewife Club by sending in recipes, household hints or work easers to the above department, care of the Daly City Record. In the near future club members will be invited to a get-to-gether afternoon tea in appreciation of your efforts to make this column interesting and helpful to our house keeping readers. This little affair will give us women folk an opportunity to look into future work that can be accomplished by the club.

Send in your contributions to this column, now. The list of charter members will be printed, September 11.

Mrs. Frances H. Rickmann, 421 San Diego avenue, telephone Delaware 7158, is now a member of the club, having submitted the following recipes:

Quince Jelly

Choose large ripe fruit and remove all down and dust. Cut in small pieces, add water enough so that it may be seen to partially cover fruit in sauce pan. Cook until tender and then mash. Put in cloth bag and allow to drip. When it stops dripping, add water to the fruit and squeeze until fruit is dry.

Method for Cooking the Juice

First clear the juice previously prepared by dripping. Place three cups of this in a sauce pan and to it add one-half cup sugar. Cook fifteen or twenty minutes over a quick flame. Test jelly by dropping from spoon. When it falls heavily, it is ready to put in glasses.

It is the small quantity cooked in a receptacle and the violent cooking which brings the juice to a jell in spite of the lesser amount of sugar. Your product retains thereby more of the natural fruit flavor. Using two medium sized saucepans at one time, instead of one large one, does not consume any more fuel for its cooking.

Mrs. Rickmann also sent in a recipe for

Sweet Pickled Ripe Tomatoes

Peel and slice the tomatoes and to every seven pounds allow three and one-half pounds of sugar, one-half tablespoon of cinnamon, one-half tablespoon of mace, one tablespoon of cloves and one quart of vinegar. Mix all together and cook four hours over a slow fire, stirring often. Set away in glass jars or a stone crock if preferred.

This pickle is delicious for cold meats.

Fried Green Peppers

(From The Farmer's Wife)

Cut the cores and seeds away and dice the peppers. As there will be a shrinkage of about half, be sure to prepare enough of the vegetable for the size of your family. Place in frying pan about one-third full of water, salted to taste. Cook until water boils away, then add fat and fry until brown. This dish is prepared the same as that of fried onions.

Fried green peppers are delicious severed with steaks or chops.

Mrs. George R. Augustien, 501 Evergreen, telephone Elkridge 4971, recently sent in a cake recipe which will appear in a later issue of this column.

Correct Brake Picture

There is this to be remembered about brake equalization, that it cannot be assured on every occasion and under every circumstances.

The amount of pressure on the different brake drums can be equalized because it is under the designer's control, but that is not true of the friction between brake shoe and drum and tire tread and road surface. It is something to remember.

Valve Defects Costly

Badly worn valve guides, improperly adjusted valve tappets, or late timing will have a tendency to increase oil and fuel consumption.

EXPLANATION FOR LIFE MEMBERSHIP PROGRAM OF P.T.A.

In 1925 the State Boardof Managers of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers voted to establish a revolving fund for student loan and allocated $1500 for the year This action was continued for the years 1926 and 1927. It soon became apparent that the sum allocated was but a mere fraction of the amount needed to aid the fine young students who so eagerly applied. In 1927 the State Board of Managers created the department of Life Membership and allocated the money reecived from the sale of Life Memberships, plus student reimbursements, to the Student Loan Funds.

Since 1927, when this department was established, over 1,247 Life Memberships have been sold. Since the Student Loan Fund was established, $30,894. has been loaned to 134 students. Last year $6,504. was loaned to 47 students.

The funds derived from the sale of Life Memberships are entered in the Student Loan Revolving Fund and are used to assist worthy students to attend universities or other technical schools and better prepare themselves for their chosen careers.

The fee for Life Membership in the California Congress of Parents and Teachers is $25. This is an honorary Life Membership. In order to be an active member, dues must be paid in some local association.
